

Stainless Steel Focus

Stainless Steel Focus was launched in September 1990. It is published monthly and provides news, comment, and analysis of both local and international stainless steel markets. Contents include company news and company profiles, market supply and demand, forecasts, prices, processing and processors, applications and users. Particular attention is paid to the raw materials markets - nickel, chrome and stainless steel scrap - which provide key insights into likely stainless steel market movements.

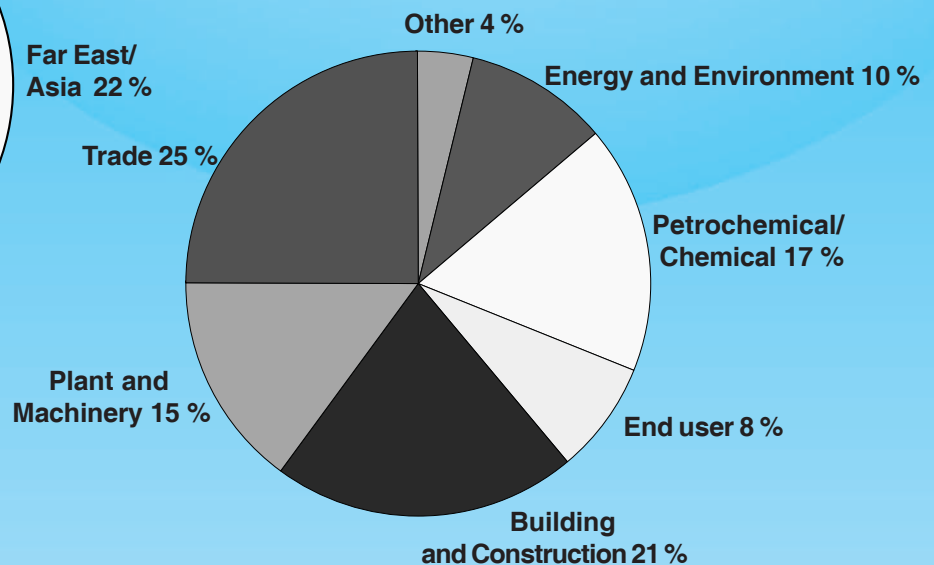

Stainless Steel Focus is the only stainless steel publication that provides this vital data and analysis every month to senior management and key decision makers within companies active in the stainless steel industry in Europe, the Far East and the Americas.

Stainless Steel Focus is the global leading provider of information and news for the stainless industry and combined with our web site www.stainless-steel-focus.com supplies the complete media package for companies wishing to promote their products and services to a finely targeted worldwide audience.
